Broadcast Hysteria A. Brad Schwartz, 2015-05-05 On the evening of October 30 1938 radio listeners across the United States heard a startling report of a meteor strike in the New Jersey countryside With sirens blaring in the background announcers in the field described mysterious creatures terrifying war machines and thick clouds of poison gas moving toward New York City As the invading force approached Manhattan some listeners sat transfixed while others ran to alert neighbors or to call the police Some even fled their homes But the hair raising broadcast was not a real news bulletin it was Orson Welles s adaptation of the H G Wells classic The War of the Worlds In Broadcast Hysteria A Brad Schwartz boldly retells the story of Welles s famed radio play and its impact Did it really spawn a wave of mass hysteria as The New York Times reported Schwartz is the first to examine the hundreds of letters sent to Orson Welles himself in the days after the broadcast and his findings challenge the conventional wisdom Few listeners believed an actual attack was under way But even so Schwartz shows that Welles s broadcast became a major scandal prompting a different kind of mass panic as Americans debated the bewitching power of the radio and the country s vulnerability in a time of crisis When the debate was over American broadcasting had changed for good but not for the better As Schwartz tells this story we observe how an atmosphere of natural disaster and impending war permitted broadcasters to create shared live national experiences for the first time We follow Orson Welles s rise to fame and watch his manic energy and artistic genius at work in the play s hurried yet innovative production And we trace the present day popularity of fake news back to its source in Welles s show and its many imitators Schwartz s original research gifted storytelling and thoughtful analysis make Broadcast Hysteria a groundbreaking new look at a crucial but little understood episode in American history

Writing For Radio Vincent McNerney, 2001-08-11 Here is a comprehensive guide to the essential theoretical and practical aspects of radio writing in all principal genres: short stories, plays, documentaries, docu-dramas, talks, adaptations, dramatizations, poems, and advertisements. Vincent McNerney offers historical overviews of the development of each of these categories and an analysis of the nature of radio itself: an attempt to isolate a radio language, a syntax and vocabulary that can produce pictures in the mind of the listener. He shows that radio can be taught effectively as prose, drama, and verse. Examples for analysis are included from both broadcast and non-broadcast work.

The Primer of Humor Research Victor Raskin, 2008-11-06 The book is intended to provide a definitive view of the field of humor research for both beginning and established scholars in a variety of fields who are developing an interest in humor and need to familiarize themselves with the available body of knowledge. Each chapter of the book is devoted to an important aspect of humor research or to a disciplinary approach to the field, and each is written by the leading expert or emerging scholar in that area. There are two primary motivations for the book. The positive one is to collect and summarize the impressive body of knowledge accumulated in humor research in and around Humor: The International Journal of Humor Research. The negative motivation is to prevent the embarrassment to and from the first timers, often established experts in their own field, who venture into humor research without any notion that there already exists a body of knowledge they need to acquire before publishing anything on the subject, unless they are in the business of reinventing the wheel and have serious doubts about its being round. The organization of the book reflects the main groups of scholars participating in the increasingly popular and high-powered humor research movement throughout the world: an 800 to 1,000 strong contingent and growing. The chapters are organized along the same lines: History, Research, Issues, Main Directions, Current Situation, Possible Future, Bibliography, and use the author's definitive credentials not to promote an individual view but rather to give the reader a good, comprehensive and condensed view of the area.
